

Clara Robinson, Petition to Remain in Virginia, 1848 (p. 1 of 3)

To The Honourable
 The General Assembly of Virginia

Humblly coming, Your Petitioner Clara Robinson a free woman of color - respectfully sheweth; That she hath been recently emancipated by her Mistress Elizabeth Gibson resident of the City of Richmond in consideration of her previous services and uniform good conduct and demeanor as set forth in the deed of emancipation recorded in the Hustings Court of the City of Richmond - and now being of advanced age (60 years) and bound to the City of Richmond by the strongest ties - all of her children being Slaves living in the said City - and holding associations of the kindest character with many of the families of white Citizens here resident, she is exceedingly loth to quit the City, unknown and unprotected to wander to a foreign State meeting the hardships and infirmities of old age unsupported and uncherished by the warmth of filial affection or kindly gratitude for past services - and therefore she respectfully prays that she may be allowed to remain within the Commonwealth of Virginia for the remainder of her life and be admitted to register in the City of Richmond as a manumitted slave! And Your Petitioner further respectfully sheweth, that in addition to the considerations above stated, she has been for several years professionally employed in the City as an accouchour or midwife and given satisfaction generally in that capacity - in evidence whereof she tenders the certificate of the Honorable James C. Seddon drawn up in his own hand and signed by a large number of the medical faculty of Richmond who in the course of their obstetrical practice have had occasion to employ her and kindly given this testimonial of their valuation. This certificate moreover proves that she is and will be well supported by her employment so long as such services are necessary in society and thus not become a burden to the State or City, should the Legislature in their wisdom grant the burden of this prayer! All of which is

Having had occasion at different times to employ for several months Clara Robinson, I take pleasure in stating that I have found her a faithful, attentive, respectful and honest servant, and in the discharge of her peculiar duties as an attendant on the sick, and a nurse for infants, remarkably kind, careful and competent. She has proper middle age and has, I am informed a large family of children, who are all slaves. The probability of her removing from the State would consequently involve the rupture of all her ties and associations and is a great hardship to her, while to many families in the State the loss of employing her on trying occasions, it would be a serious inconvenience and annoyance, and I am satisfied of in any instance whatever, it is proper, as the policy of the law manifestly contemplates it may be to allow a manumitted slave to remain in the State, she presents as strong a case as can well be presented for the exercise of such indulgence.
